NOT ALL IN PREPARATION

Technical Training Not Last Word, But Paves the Way for Further Study and Advancement.

The "Postea Quid" society of the high school, an organization formed for the purpose of discussing various professions and businesses, that it may help some student in selecting his life work, has written several letters to the leading business men and manufacturers of the country. The first letter received by the society was from H. M. Ashby, manager of the western division, located at Chicago, of the Sherwin-Williams Co. of paint, varnish and color makers. Mr. Ashby a teacher in the high school and who a teacher in the high school and who is librarian of the new society.

The work of the society is to bring together material descriptive of various trades, businesses, agricultural pursuits and professions, to investigate their extent and type of men required of them, the preparation most desirable for men to enter them and where and how such preparation may be obtained. The society's attention will be to focus upon those vocations which interest its members. The society meets once a week and their meetings are very interesting.

The letter of Mr. Ashby was to George Crowson, president of the society, and is as follows:

"In the first place, what we might call the purely specialized branches of mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, chemistry, etc., are largely over-crowded, and the rewards only seem to go to those of exceptional ability. It has been my observation, however, that the man who can get a training such as given in these branches and with this training enter business in an ordinary way, generally through the manufacturing department, has an excellent lever with which to accomplish unusual results and win promotion.

"I might illustrate this by saying that two men take the full course of mechanical engineering, in an up-to-date technical school; one might enter a drafting room, and after a period of years, gradually work up to some position of trust in the engineering department, but his progress would be slow, and the ultimate reward would not be very great unless he showed extraordinary genius along mechanical and engineering lines. The other man, with the same equipment, however, might go to work as a day laborer in an automobile factory, and because of his excellent head and hand training, could easily, in a much shorter time, rise to a position of great executive and financial responsibility.

"In the first place, the engineer simply worked at his profession, which was already over-crowded with many other men with equal training and ability. The second man, however, left the field with much competition, and entered a field where he had to compete with untrained men, and added to his engineering training, a specific knowledge of one certain business, so that in a short time he out-distanced all competition.

"I believe therefore, if any of your young men should show ability along any of the specialized technical lines, they will find it to their advantage to follow out their training as far as possible and then use their training as to detail to do better work in any of the productive lines. I personally have followed this line myself, having taken the full training of a chemical engineer, and on leaving college, I went to work in a paint factory at $2.00 a day, and was very careful thereafter to keep out of the laboratory, and use my chemical and engineering training only to enable me to make better paint. I always found that I could employ plenty of good chemists at reasonable figures, and that it was hard to get a paint and color maker who had a good fundamental knowledge of chemistry and mechanics. Such a man could almost command his own price.

"I have found that by following these lines still further, I have been able to work from the factory end into the sales work, and from that into general executive work, as in each case my previous experience simply acted as a broader educator, and enabled me to more intelligently study the problems which were new to me.

"I think too many young men consider their technical training as the last word, and believe that after its completion they are entitled to a liberal reward for their services, whereas they should consider that they have merely been trained for further study and research, and that the information they have gathered is of no value to anyone else, but is simply of value to them in enabling them to tackle the problems put up to them by their employers.

"In general, I would say that a young man must have considerable liking for the branch of study he intends to follow, he should be of sufficient quickness and intelligence to relate his studies to the general work of the world, he must have at least a moderate capacity for equipment, but he must have a liberal share of courage and determination and a large capacity for hard work. I believe more than anything else, a man has no right to go into any work involving the sciences unless he has a very large proportion of fundamental honesty; by that, I mean that if he cannot even be honest with himself in his thoughts in regard to his work, then he must eventually be a failure in that line of work.

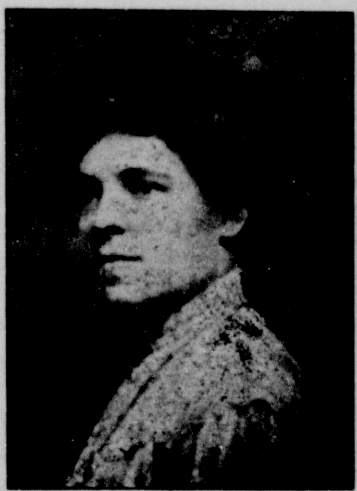

"I sincerely hope that the little I have to offer on this subject will be of some help, and wishing you every possible success in your work, believe me, yours sincerely,

H. M. ASHBY,
Manager Western District."

NO DECISION YET BY BOARD ON WATER TOWER PROBLEM.

STILL CONSIDER BIDS TO INSPECT THE ROADS

Board Will Build New Main—Much of the Work Will Be Let to Local Contractors.

At the meeting of the board of public works held Monday evening and attended by Hiram Phillips of St. Louis, engineer of the board, nothing definite was done in regard to the water tower, but the board will advertise for bids for pumps, a pressure filtering system, a new concrete dam, feed pump, feed water heater, an electrical generator set and the repairs to the plant building such as a new roof and adding on to the building.

In discussing the water tower, the board is still at sea. If the board cannot repair the tower for a reasonable price and with safety, it is probable that they will do away with the tower. But all of the bids on the water tower are still under consideration and the proposition of a structural steel tower for the support of the tank is receiving favorable consideration. This plan is to tear down the water tower to the forty foot line and then build a structural steel tower about sixty feet up and then placed an oval shaped tank, the tank to hold 150,000 gallons of water. The board will probably make their decision on the tower question within the next several days.

The pressure filtering system will be installed at the plant and this will purify and clarify the water.

Much of the work on the plant, such as building a new roof and adding onto the building will be let to local contractors.

The board intends to build a new main and as they will not have as much money for this work as is needed, they will undoubtedly select the district where the most customers are.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION IS ORGANIZED FOR BUSINESS.

TO INSPECT THE ROADS

Will Not Make Hasty Decision as to the Six Routes, But Will Give All Fair Chance.

The county highway commission, appointed by the county court last week, held their first meeting on Monday for the purpose of organizing. The members of the commission are E. H. Bainum and John Clary of this city, and Sam H. Conlin of Barnard. Mr. Bainum was selected as chairman of the commission and John Clary, county highway engineer, as secretary.

The commission discussed the general plan of action and the several possible routes for the county seat highways to be established. They decided that they would make an inspection trip over the roads of the county and that their selection should not be made hastily, but that due consideration would be given to the various routes. The commission also decided to allow sufficient time for roads to settle after the late rains before viewing and inspecting.

It is expected that a hot contest will be on between some of the towns in the county for these highways. Skidmore is making an effort to get the Oregon highway and will have competition in Graham, Ravenwood and Parnell are standing together for the highway to Grant City, but the people on the "Ridge" road will make an effort to get this highway. There will be several other contests on.

The commission will try to select the road that is the best and most practical. A matter of distance will probably not be taken into consideration. If you are after these roads, now is the time to get busy, as the commission may make their trip nearly any day. There are six highways to be selected in this county.

MUSIC IS UNIVERSAL.

Inharmonious Sounds Toned by Distance—Graduates Told to Follow the High Ideals.

The baccalaureate sermon of Rev. S. D. Harkness of the Presbyterian church on "The Ministry of Praise," to the graduating class of the Maryville Conservatory of Music on Sunday evening at the First M. E. church, was an excellent sermon and it is as follows:

Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord.—Psalm 150:6.

Dr. Joseph Parker, the great London preacher, used to call the Psalms the anthem book of the church. I take as a text the climax of David's book of praise: "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord." In this text you will find the fundamental reason for music. All the musical ability, all the equipment for musical development, all the ingenuity brought to bear upon the creation and construction of musical instruments derive their inspiration from this injunction to praise the Lord. Caedmon, the father of English song, was a miserable goatherd who was so ignorant that even his fellow servants used to twist him because he was not as bright as themselves, but one night while he was asleep in the stable loft, a glorious stranger stood beside him and commanded him to hymn the glories of creation. When he awoke from his dream, he wrote such majestic verse that he became renowned as the father of Anglo-Saxon music. He furnished Milton with the inspiration for "Paradise Lost," and it was because these men had a vision of God's lofty intent in giving music to the world that their fame is imperishable.

When God commands men he always gives them the dynamics of obedience. When he pointed to the cross he said "My grace is sufficient for thee." And when Christ gave the vision of the Blessed Life, all men could say with the Psalmist: "He hath put a new song in my mouth."

The instinct for music is not a matter of class or nation, culture or development; it is affected by these, but the instinct for music is primarily and essentially human—as human as humanity. You will see people who cannot sing a note drinking in the beauty and rhythm; it is the instinct for music. I have seen a good many orthodox feet that never learned to dance beating time to the music of an orchestra; it is the physiological response of the bodily organism to music. The player piano and victrola are popular among people who have never had the advantage of a conservatory course; they satisfy their instinct for music. Paderewski and Kubelik pile up their mountains of melody for thousands of people whose fingers have never learned the keyboard or violin bow but who are Paderewskis and Kubeliks in soul. Many a sorely tried saint who thus starved for beauty denied down here has endured with smiling face because of the hope of a harp in the heavenly land.

It was God who made possible all the varied cadences of the human voice. It was God who planned the quartette when he constructed some throats with a high arch for tenor and soprano, and gave to others the full rich tones of the contralto and bass. Oh, God is the supreme music master and he is always teaching humanity harmony and rhythm so that the whole race may become a hallelujah chorus singing the praise of the heart to God for "his wonderful works to the children of men."

God's reason for music and man's instinct for music ought to impress upon us the nobility of music, and insofar as we apprehend the divine origin and lofty intent of music we will guard it from contamination by those who would debauch it. There is a good deal of stultifying stuff being written that is not literature. There is no dearth of paint daubers, but their contribution to art is nil. Imitations flourish under the shadow of the genuine, and bunk is the inevitable dross in music as in art and poetry. When music makes my eyes to glow with the vision splendid and makes my heart to throb with the immensity of God and human destiny, gives me a conception of the soul of man sailing the heaving seas of eternity, discloses the far-distant gleaming portals of the haven of God and shows me the succeeding worlds, each with its illimitability, which man shall conquer for his own until he dwells with God as one who understands all things, conveys divine intelligence to me by reason of its super-expression, I care not whether that music comes from a church choir or operatic chorus, violin or pipe-organ, I recognize its notes as syllables of the language by which I may worship God with the ministry of praise. But if human voice or instrument is used to suggest or accentuate vulgarity, I see an impety as offensive as when Belshazzar let his libertines and harlots pollute the holy vessels of God's temple. Music is the gift of God and when it falls into the hands of debased and sensuous men and women every true musician worthy of the name will uphold the true and pure and spurn the false and evil. I will not let the concretely so that you may not forget. You will hear coarse and mawkish trash sung in many of our places of modern amusement, but you never heard any such stuff in your conservatory course. Live up to the vision of the great musicians as it has been passed to you. Sing the true and beautiful and play the spiritual masterpieces, and you will do your part to stamp out this low tainted stuff that is being brewed to besmirch, through a God-given faculty, the hearts and minds of the people.

You can do this and much more by your interpretation of music. A teacher of voice or piano can train the rippling notes and sprightly fingers, but the effort is vain if the soul is not big enough to make of moving fingers and varied notes the language of heaven. I know a girl who has studied in several big cities under the most famous teachers in America and when she came back to us as an embryo prima donna, I asked her to sing to my people. And when she stood up in my church to sing, the only thought she had was to deliver herself of a whole lot of tonal pyrotechnics until the audience wondered what she meant by such bewildering display. In that choir was another young woman who had practically no advantages, but when she sang the people drank in the beauty and power of the composer's message.

The lack of interpretation in church music robs many a service of charm and inspiration. There is a rare knack of reading a hymn. There is a splendor about congregational singing that puts every heart in touch with the Infinite. When our choirs and soloists learn that they are as responsible for the leadership of the worship of praise as the preacher is for the teaching and devotion, our services will be just three times as effective as they now are.

If you have a gift of song, use it for the Lord. I have a friend who is never too busy to go and lay upon the altar of Christ the sacrifice of time and pleasure and her beautiful voice is heard in many a humble home where some despairing heart is crushed by a hopeless battle with sickness. Her talent is God's to use and He is using it to give "beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning and the mantle of praise for the spirit of heaviness." You will do more good by following her steps than by giving a dozen piano recitals.

I awoke the other morning just as dawn was flushing the eastern sky with its glory and I heard at first the sleepy twitter of the birds aroused at length to a hallelujah chorus of praise for the coming day. And I thought how God gives voice to all his lesser creatures. He has given the ocean a mighty voice and the brook a whisper that is as full and sweet as the tone of the harp. He has given the winds that stir the trees anthems of their own. He has put rich tones among the rocky cliffs and deep cadences in every valley depth. I was on a little hill a mile outside of a great city a short time ago and as I remembered the crash of noise from which I had just come, and listened, I heard a low, soft hum from the city streets and I realized how God by distance and atmosphere turns discord into harmony. But to man he has given the new song of redemption.

The angels sang it over Bethlehem the night Jesus was born, and men and women have caught up that song and they have carried it around the world. If you can understand the yearning of Charles Wesley: "Had I a thousand tongues to sing My dear Redeemer's praise, The glories of my God and King, The triumphs of His grace," you can understand why God gave music. You will respond to and encourage the instinct for music. You will not lose sight of the nobility thereof, and by your interpretation you will further God's work in the world.

The Sigma Delta Chi sorority gave one of their delightful affairs Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Emmett Scott, a surprise buffet luncheon and linen shower, in honor of Miss Lora Stockton, who will become a bride on May 24. Miss Stockton had been invited to meet the sorority girls at Crow's studio at 5 o'clock, where a group picture was taken, after which Miss Stockton and Miss Grace Langan was to accompany Mrs. Scott home for supper. The other sorority girls had urgent calls at home, they said, and hurried away, but all took the short-way to the Scott home and were safely hidden away when Mrs. Scott and her guests arrived. A few minutes later the sorority suddenly appeared in the parlor before the bewildered honor guest and proceeded to entertain her in a most delightful manner. Luncheon followed in the dining room. The table was centered with a large and beautiful basket of crab apple blossoms, which was presented the bride-elect after luncheon with the information that a shower would be found under the blossoms. And it was a shower that would suit any bride, lovely pieces of hand-embroidered and cluny lace pieces. Music and a general good social time were enjoyed the remainder of the evening. The members of the sorority present were Miss Stockton, Mrs. Emmett Scott, Mrs. Burt K. Lewis, Miss Grace Langan, Miss Hettie Anthony, Miss LaRue Kemp, Miss Phyllis Saylor, Miss Nelle Hudson, Miss Dora Day, Miss Julia Ward, Miss Jane Hinote, Miss Bess Porter, Miss Ella Richards, Miss Alice Fickland, Miss Jeanette Cottrill, Miss Mary Ogden, Miss Golda Airy, Miss Margaret McDougal, Miss Lois K. Halley, Miss Jessie Mutz.

Miss Stockton, the bride-elect, will leave in a few days for Hydro, Okla., for a short visit with relatives, and will be accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. S. H. Townsend. Miss Stockton will then go on to San Bernardino, Calif., where she will be married on Saturday, May 24, to Mr. Harvey Neal Meacham, at the home of Mr. Meacham's sister, Mrs. C. A. Law. The bride-to-be and Mrs. Law were schoolmates at Hydro, Okla., when they were little girls. Mr. Meacham and his brother-in-law are in the wholesale and retail motorcycle business at San Bernardino.

Chi-Namel Demonstration

at Love & Gaugh's Store on Friday and Saturday, May 16 and 17

We have the sales agency for the line of all-purpose varnish, which is so far ahead of any varnish that has ever been sold in this community, that we particularly desire an early opportunity to show its good points to some member of every household in our business district.

What we want you to know about this wonderful varnish is something that cannot be told; but we can show you in a very few minutes that you get more for your money every time by using Chi-Namel Varnish for floors, woodwork, furniture, or anything about the house on which varnish is used.

This varnish is furnished in the natural color and also in a full variety of colors. It can be hammered and boiled without showing any signs of abuse. Any amateur can apply it to large surfaces and get just as smooth a finish as a professional finisher—no laps, no brush marks, no blotches to make a patchy appearance.

You will thank us for this invitation after you have come to know all about it.

Other features we want to show you are the Chi-Namel Ready-to-Use Graining Process, by which you can cover all blemishes in your old floors and make them any color you wish, and also produce the grain of oak or other woods.

Old carpets can be made into rugs and a new hardwood border will take the place of the ugly flooring at a cost of but 2c per square foot.

We will gladly explain all these features at our store if you give us the opportunity.

CONCEPTION TEAM WON.

Defeated the Normal Team by a Score of 4 to 2 Monday Afternoon.

A mighty classy exhibition of the national pastime was staged Monday afternoon at the Normal baseball park, when the Conception College baseball team again defeated the Normals by a score of 4 to 2. The visitors scored a run in the first inning when Wertman doubled after two were out, and scored a moment later, when Shiel drove the ball over the right field fence for a triple. Schnettger started pitching for the Collegians, but retired in favor of Wertman after the locals had tied the count in the second inning. Wertman allowed five hits and struck out four. The Normals hit safely nine times.

Captain "Shylock" Wilson pitched for the locals, and although he allowed ten safe swats, he kept them pretty well scattered. LaMar was responsible for a couple of the Catholics' runs, when he muffed up two ground-ers. Wilson struck out 14 of the enemy.

The star play of the entire game was pulled off by Vandersloot, the Normal's left gardener. Keeler, the first man up, hit a liner to left that had all the earmarks of a single, but Van came in and made a great shoe string catch. Keeler, by the way, is a local product, and he gave a good account of himself. He had no chances in the field, but shone at the bat with two sattles out of five times up.

A good sized crowd witnessed the game. Following is the box score:

IF YOU WANT SOMETHING BETTER

GET A JOHN DEERE

Accurate Dependable Durable

Nothing is so essential as accuracy in a corn planter. If you were to plant by hand, the correct number of kernels could be dropped in each hill.

This is desirable, but too slow and expensive. The John Deere No. 9 Planter is accurate, and dependable. Seed plates and valves are positively controlled in their action. There is no spring or trigger in the No. 9 shank.

Valves cannot get out of time, all parts on the rock shaft are riveted in place. Operation of seed plates is sure. There are no ratchets. Instead, the No. 9 has a clutch.

Handy and Durable

Change from hill to drill-dropping is instantly made without getting off the s at. Neither is it necessary to change plates.

There is no equal to the automatic reel for lightness, ease of operation and absence of loose parts. Another time-saver is the tip-over hopper which permits of change of plates without taking out corn.

Frames, front and back, are of full stock. Drill and rocker shafts are cold-rolled steel. All parts on rocker shaft are malleable, firmly riveted in place.

Malleable iron is used in check heads and all other places where lightness and strength are necessary. Disc bearings are large. Hard-oil screw caps and felt washers keep grease in and dirt out.

Seed Plates for All Needs

The shoe openers, set so as to penetrate hard and trashy ground, cut their way through, making furrows without skips and insuring good covering of seed.

Five sets of seed plates, meeting all requirements, are regularly furnished.

Let us give you names of those who are already using this planter.

TO PROSECUTE MEN WHO CUT PAY

Trust Law Suggested for Those Who Reduce Wages.

REPUBLICANS TO SAVE FIRE.

Big Battle to Be Deferred Until Underwood Revenue Measure Has Reached the Floor of Chamber. Some Changes in Schedules.

Washington, May 13.—Senator Williams, a member of the senate finance committee, declared that manufacturers who reduce wages or threaten to reduce them because of tariff reductions should be prosecuted by the department of justice under the Sherman anti-trust act. The senator said the Sherman law had been used against laboring men who combined to increase wages and it was just that it should be directed against men who conspire to reduce wages.

Senator Penrose's plan to conduct an extensive filibuster in support of his proposal to hold open tariff hearings before the finance committee will not receive the unanimous backing of the Republicans when it comes up today.

Would Conserve Oratory.

Many prominent Republican senators do not believe it wise to fire their tariff guns in the preliminary fight over the question of hearings. They argue that Republican oratory should be reserved until the bill is before the senate and then their efforts should be directed toward showing the country what the party thinks of it.

Several Republicans indicated that they would vote against the Penrose amendment to make the committee hold public meetings. Persistent reports about the senate say, however, that several Democrats will be found voting with the majority of the Republicans for the Penrose amendment and the vote in consequence is likely to be close.

Skeptical About Report.

Democrats on the finance committee were skeptical about a report that an agreement had been signed by seven western senators who are opposed to free wool to vote against that provision of the bill in conference.

Democrats who keep in close touch with every phase of the situation did not believe that any such agreement has been made or is likely to be made. They declared flatly that they expected the Democrats of the committee to present the bill to the senate with both the wool and sugar schedules as they were left in the house bill.

Some changes in important schedules will be made by the committee. The metal schedule, notably, will be altered and the committee to which it was assigned several weeks ago met last night with Chairman Simmons.

PAPER AND PULP DUTY TO GO

Customs Court Decides in Favor of Producers in Russia and Germany.

Washington, May 13.—The customs court decided that European nations are entitled to the free entry of wood pulp and paper under "the most favored nations" clause of their commercial treaties with the United States because the free entry privilege is granted to Canada under the only operative clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The court also held that the treasury department had placed a correct interpretation on the Canadian reciprocity act by immediately admitting wood pulp and paper free without reciprocal action by Canada. Dissenting opinions were delivered.

Norway, Russia, Austria-Hungary and Germany claimed the right of free entry of wood pulp and paper from their respective countries. Former President Taft declined to grant the request and referred the question to the court.

It cannot be stated whether the treasury department or the department of justice will appeal the case to the supreme court. It has been the attitude of the government to oppose all appeals from the customs court because the act creating the court says the decision of the customs court shall be final. The fact that the question involves the interpretation of treaties may cause the government to appeal.

NOT ALL IN PREPARATION

Technical Training Not Last Word, But Paves the Way for Further Study and Advancement.

The "Postea Quid" society of the high school, an organization formed for the purpose of discussing various professions and businesses, that it may help some student in selecting his life work, has written several letters to the leading business men and manufacturers of the country. The first letter received by the society was from H. M. Ashby, manager of the western division, located at Chicago, of the Sherwin-Williams Co. of paint, varnish and color makers. Mr. Ashby a teacher in the high school and who is a teacher in the high school and who is librarian of the new society.

The work of the society is to bring together material descriptive of various trades, businesses, agricultural pursuits and professions, to investigate their extent and type of men required of them, the preparation most desirable for men to enter them and where and how such preparation may be obtained. The society's attention will be to focus upon those vocations which interest its members. The society meets once a week and their meetings are very interesting.

The letter of Mr. Ashby was to George Crowson, president of the society, and is as follows:

"In the first place, what we might call the purely specialized branches of mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, chemistry, etc., are largely over-crowded, and the rewards only seem to go to those of exceptional ability. It has been my observation, however, that the man who can get a training such as given in these branches and with this training enter business in an ordinary way, generally through the manufacturing department, has an excellent lever with which to accomplish unusual results and win promotion.

"I might illustrate this by saying that two men take the full course of mechanical engineering, in an up-to-date technical school; one might enter a drafting room, and after a period of years, gradually work up to some position of trust in the engineering department, but his progress would be slow, and the ultimate reward would not be very great unless he showed extraordinary genius along mechanical and engineering lines. The other man, with the same equipment, however, might go to work as a day laborer in an automobile factory, and because of his excellent head and hand training, could easily, in a much shorter time, rise to a position of great executive and financial responsibility.

"In the first place, the engineer simply worked at his profession, which was already over-crowded with many other men with equal training and ability. The second man, however, left the field with much competition, and entered a field where he had to compete with untrained men, and added to his engineering training, a specific knowledge of one certain business, so that in a short time he out-distanced all competition.

"I believe therefore, if any of your young men should show ability along any of the specialized technical lines, they will find it to their advantage to follow out their training as far as possible and then use their training as to detail to do better work in any of the productive lines. I personally have followed this line myself, having taken the full training of a chemical engineer, and on leaving college, I went to work in a paint factory at $2.00 a day, and was very careful thereafter to keep out of the laboratory, and use my chemical and engineering training only to enable me to make better paint. I always found that I could employ plenty of good chemists at reasonable figures, and that it was hard to get a paint and color maker who had a good fundamental knowledge of chemistry and mechanics. Such a man could almost command his own price.

"I have found that by following these lines still further, I have been able to work from the factory end into the sales work, and from that into general executive work, as in each case my previous experience simply acted as a broader educator, and enabled me to more intelligently study the problems which were new to me.

"I think too many young men consider their technical training as the

last word, and believe that after its completion they are entitled to a liberal reward for their services, whereas they should consider that they have merely been trained for further study and research, and that the information they have gathered is of no value to anyone else, but is simply of value to them in enabling them to tackle the problems put up to them by their employers.

"In general, I would say that a young man must have considerable liking for the branch of study he intends to follow, he should be of sufficient quickness and intelligence to relate his studies to the general work of the world, he must have at least a moderate capacity for equipment, but he must have a liberal share of courage and determination and a large capacity for hard work. I believe more than anything else, a man has no right to go into any work involving the sciences unless he has a very large proportion of fundamental honesty; by that, I mean that if he cannot even be honest with himself in his thoughts in regard to his work, then he must eventually be a failure in that line of work.

"I sincerely hope that the little I have to offer on this subject will be of some help, and wishing you every possible success in your work, believe me, yours sincerely,

H. M. ASHBY,
Manager Western District."

IS STILL A PUZZLE

NO DECISION YET BY BOARD ON WATER TOWER PROBLEM.

STILL CONSIDER BIDS

Board Will Build New Main—Much of the Work Will Be Let to Local Contractors.

At the meeting of the board of public works held Monday evening and attended by Hiram Phillips of St. Louis, engineer of the board, nothing definite was done in regard to the water tower, but the board will advertise for bids for pumps, a pressure filtering system, a new concrete dam, feed pump, feed water heater, an electrical generator set and the repairs to the plant building such as a new roof and adding on to the building.

In discussing the water tower, the board is still at sea. If the board cannot repair the tower for a reasonable price and with safety, it is probable that they will do away with the tower. But all of the bids on the water tower are still under consideration and the proposition of a structural steel tower for the support of the tank is receiving favorable consideration. This plan is to tear down the water tower to the forty foot line and then build a structural steel tower about sixty feet up and then placed an oval shaped tank, the tank to hold 150,000 gallons of water. The board will probably make their decision on the tower question within the next several days. The pressure filtering system will be installed at the plant and this will purify and clarify the water.

Much of the work on the plant, such as building a new roof and adding onto the building will be let to local contractors.

The board intends to build a new main and as they will not have as much money for this work as is needed, they will undoubtedly select the district where the most customers are.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION IS ORGANIZED FOR BUSINESS.

TO INSPECT THE ROADS

Will Not Make Hasty Decision as to the Six Routes, But Will Give All Fair Chance.

The county highway commission, appointed by the county court last week, held their first meeting on Monday for the purpose of organizing. The members of the commission are E. H. Bainum and John Clary of this city, and Sam H. Conlin of Barnard. Mr. Bainum was selected as chairman of the commission and John Clary, county highway engineer, as secretary.

The commission discussed the general plan of action and the several possible routes for the county seat highways to be established. They decided that they would make an inspection trip over the roads of the county and that their selection should not be made hastily, but that due consideration would be given to the various routes. The commission also decided to allow sufficient time for roads to settle after the late rains before viewing and inspecting.

It is expected that a hot contest will be on between some of the towns in the county for these highways. Skidmore is making an effort to get the Oregon highway and will have competition in Graham, Ravenwood and Parnell are standing together for the highway to Grant City, but the people on the "Ridge" road will make an effort to get this highway. There will be several other contests on.

The commission will try to select the road that is the best and most practical. A matter of distance will probably not be taken into consideration. If you are after these roads, now is the time to get busy, as the commission may make their trip nearly any day. There are six highways to be selected in this county.

MUSIC IS UNIVERSAL.

Inharmonious Sounds Toned by Distance—Graduates Told to Follow the High Ideals.

The baccalaureate sermon of Rev. S. D. Harkness of the Presbyterian church on "The Ministry of Praise," to the graduating class of the Maryville Conservatory of Music on Sunday evening at the First M. E. church, was an excellent sermon and it is as follows:

Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord.—Psalm 150:6.

Dr. Joseph Parker, the great London preacher, used to call the Psalms the anthem book of the church. I take as a text the climax of David's book of praise: "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord." In this text you will find the fundamental reason for music. All the musical ability, all the equipment for musical development, all the ingenuity brought to bear upon the creation and construction of musical instruments derive their inspiration from this injunction to praise the Lord. Caedmon, the father of English song, was a miserable goatherd who was so ignorant that even his fellow servants used to twist him because he was not as bright as themselves, but one night while he was asleep in the stable loft, a glorious stranger stood beside him and commanded him to hymn the glories of creation. When he awoke from his dream, he wrote such majestic verse that he became renowned as the father of Anglo-Saxon music. He furnished Milton with the inspiration for "Paradise Lost," and it was because these men had a vision of God's lofty intent in giving music to the world that their fame is imperishable.

When God commands men he always gives them the dynamics of obedience. When he pointed to the cross he said "My grace is sufficient for thee." And when Christ gave the vision of the Blessed Life, all men could say with the Psalmist: "He hath put a new song in my mouth."

The instinct for music is not a matter of class or nation, culture or development; it is affected by these, but the instinct for music is primarily and essentially human—as human as humanity. You will see people who cannot sing a note drinking in the beauty and rhythm; it is the instinct for music. I have seen a good many orthodox feet that never learned to dance beating time to the music of an orchestra; it is the physiological response of the bodily organism to music. The player piano and victrola are popular among people who have never had the advantage of a conservatory course; they satisfy their instinct for music. Paderewski and Kubelik pile up their mountains of melody for thousands of people whose fingers have never learned the keyboard or violin bow but who are Paderewskis and Kubeliks in soul. Many a sorely tried saint who thus starved for beauty denied down here has endured with smiling face because of the hope of a harp in the heavenly land.

It was God who made possible all the varied cadences of the human voice. It was God who planned the quartette when he constructed some throats with a high arch for tenor and soprano, and gave to others the full rich tones of the contralto and bass. Oh, God is the supreme music master and he is always teaching humanity harmony and rhythm so that the whole race may become a babel-jah chorus singing the praise of the heart to God for "his wonderful works to the children of men."

God's reason for music and man's instinct for music ought to impress upon us the nobility of music, and insofar as we apprehend the divine origin and lofty intent of music we will guard it from contamination by those who would debauch it. There is a good deal of stultifying stuff being written that is not literature. There is no dearth of paint daubers, but their contribution to art is nil. Imitations flourish under the shadow of the genuine, and bunk is the inevitable dross in music as in art and poetry. When music makes my eyes to glow with the vision splendid and makes my heart to throb with the immensity of God and human destiny, gives me a conception of the soul of man sailing the heaving seas of eternity, discloses the far-distant gleaming portals of the haven of God and shows me the succeeding worlds, each with its illimitability, which man shall conquer for his own until he dwells with God as one who understands all things, conveys divine intelligence to me by reason of its super-expression, I care not whether that music comes from a church choir or operatic chorus, violin or pipe-organ, I recognize its notes as syllables of the language by which I may worship God with the ministry of praise. But if human voice or instrument is used to suggest or accentuate vulgarity, I see an impious as offensive as when Belshazzar let his libertines and harlots pollute the holy vessels of God's temple. Music is the gift of God and when it falls into the hands of debased and sensual men and women every true musician worthy of the name will uphold the true and pure and spurn the false and evil. I will put this concretely so that you may not forget. You will hear coarse and mawkish trash sung in many of our places of modern amusement, but you never heard any such stuff in your conservatory course. Live up to the vision of the great musicians as it has been passed to you. Sing the true and beautiful and play the spiritual masterpieces, and you will do your part to stamp out this low tainted stuff that is being brewed to besmirch, through a God-given faculty, the hearts and minds of the people.

You can do this and much more by your interpretation of music. A teacher of voice or piano can train the rippling notes and sprightly fingers, but the effort is vain if the soul is not big enough to make of moving fingers and varied notes the language of heaven. I know a girl who has studied in several big cities under the most famous teachers in America and when she came back to us as an embryo prima donna, I asked her to sing to my people. And when she stood up in my church to sing, the only thought she had was to deliver herself of a whole lot of tonal pyrotechnics until the audience wondered what she meant by such bewildering display. In that choir was another young woman who had practically no advantages, but when she sang the people drank in the beauty and power of the composer's message.

The lack of interpretation in church music robs many a service of charm and inspiration. There is a rare knack of reading a hymn. There is a splendor about congregational singing that puts every heart in touch with the Infinite. When our choirs and soloists learn that they are as responsible for the leadership of the worship of praise as the preacher is for the teaching and devotion, our services will be just three times as effective as they now are.

If you have a gift of song, use it for the Lord. I have a friend who is never too busy to go and lay upon the altar of Christ the sacrifice of time and pleasure and her beautiful voice is heard in many a humble home where some despairing heart is crushed by a hopeless battle with sickness. Her talent is God's to use and He is using it to give "beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning and the mantle of praise for the spirit of heaviness." You will do more good by following her steps than by giving a dozen piano recitals.

I awoke the other morning just as dawn was flushing the eastern sky with its glory and I heard at first the sleepy twitter of the birds aroused at length to a hallelujah chorus of praise for the coming day. And I thought how God gives voice to all his lesser creatures. He has given the ocean a mighty voice and the brook a whisper that is as full and sweet as the tone of the harp. He has given the winds that stir the trees anthems of their own. He has put rich tones among the rocky cliffs and deep cadences in every valley depth. I was on a little hill a mile outside of a great city a short time ago and as I remembered the crash of noise from which I had just come, and listened, I heard a low, soft hum from the city streets and I realized how God by distance and atmosphere turns discord into harmony. But to man he has given the new song of redemption.

Phones, Hanamo 171-3; Bell 126.

The angels sang it over Bethlehem the night Jesus was born, and men and women have caught up that song and they have carried it around the world. If you can understand the yearning of Charles Wesley:

"Had I a thousand tongues to sing
My dear Redeemer's praise,
The glories of my God and King,
The triumphs of His grace,"

you can understand why God gave music. You will respond to and encourage the instinct for music. You will not lose sight of the nobility thereof, and by your interpretation you will further God's work in the world.

Shower for Bride-Elect.

The Sigma Delta Chi sorority gave one of their delightful affairs Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Emmett Scott, a surprise buffet luncheon and linen shower, in honor of Miss Lora Stockton, who will become a bride on May 24. Miss Stockton had been invited to meet the sorority girls at Crow's studio at 5 o'clock, where a group picture was taken, after which Miss Stockton and Miss Grace Langan was to accompany Mrs. Scott home for supper. The other sorority girls had urgent calls at home, they said, and hurried away, but all took the short-way to the Scott home and were safely hidden away when Mrs. Scott and her guests arrived. A few minutes later the sorority suddenly appeared in the parlor before the bewildered honor guest and proceeded to entertain her in a most delightful manner. Luncheon followed in the dining room. The table was centered with a large and beautiful basket of crab apple blossoms, which was presented the bride-elect after luncheon with the information that a shower would be found under the blossoms. And it was a shower that would suit any bride, lovely pieces of hand-embroidered and cluny lace pieces. Music and a general good social time were enjoyed the remainder of the evening. The members of the sorority present were Miss Stockton, Mrs. Emmett Scott, Mrs. Burt K. Lewis, Miss Grace Langan, Miss Hettie Anthony, Miss LaRue Kemp, Miss Phyllis Saylor, Miss Nelle Hudson, Miss Dora Day, Miss Julia Ward, Miss Jane Hinton, Miss Bess Porter, Miss Ella Richards, Miss Alice Fickland, Miss Jeanette Cottrill, Miss Mary Ogden, Miss Golda Airy, Miss Margaret McDougal, Miss Lois K. Halley, Miss Jessie Mutz.

Miss Stockton, the bride-elect, will leave in a few days for Hydro, Okla., for a short visit with relatives, and will be accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. S. H. Townsend. Miss Stockton will then go on to San Bernardino, Calif., where she will be married on Saturday, May 24, to Mr. Harvey Neal Meacham, at the home of Mr. Meacham's sister, Mrs. C. A. Law. The bride-to-be and Mrs. Law were schoolmates at Hydro, Okla., when they were little girls. Mr. Meacham and his brother-in-law are in the wholesale and retail motorcycle business at San Bernardino.

Friday and Saturday, May 16 and 17

We have the sales agency for the line of all-purpose varnish, which is so far ahead of any varnish that has ever been sold in this community, that we particularly desire an early opportunity to show its good points to some member of every household in our business district.

What we want you to know about this wonderful varnish is something that cannot be told; but we can show you in a very few minutes that you get more for your money every time by using Chi-Namel Varnish for floors, woodwork, furniture, or anything about the house on which varnish is used.

This varnish is furnished in the natural color and also in a full variety of colors. It can be hammered and boiled without showing any signs of abuse. Any amateur can apply it to large surfaces and get just as smooth a finish as a professional finisher—no laps, no brush marks, no blotches to make a patchy appearance.

You will thank us for this invitation after you have come to know all about it.

Other features we want to show you are the Chi-Namel Ready-to-Use Graining Process, by which you can cover all blemishes in your old floors and make them any color you wish, and also produce the grain of oak or other woods.

Old carpets can be made into rugs and a new hardwood border will take the place of the ugly flooring at a cost of but 2c per square foot.

We will gladly explain all these features at our store if you give us the opportunity.

CONCEPTION TEAM WON.

Defeated the Normal Team by a Score of 4 to 2 Monday Afternoon.

A mighty classy exhibition of the national pastime was staged Monday afternoon at the Normal baseball park, when the Conception College baseball team again defeated the Normals by a score of 4 to 2. The visitors scored a run in the first inning when Wertman doubled after two were out, and scored a moment later, when Shiel drove the ball over the right field fence for a triple. Schmetzger started pitching for the Collegians, but retired in favor of Wertman after the locals had tied the count in the second inning. Wertman allowed five hits and struck out four. The Normals hit safely nine times.

Captain "Shylock" Wilson pitched for the locals, and although he allowed ten safe swats, he kept them pretty well scattered. LaMar was responsible for a couple of the Catholics' runs, when he muffed up two grounders. Wilson struck out 14 of the enemy.

The star play of the entire game was pulled off by Vandersloot, the Normal's left gardener. Keeler, the first man up, hit a liner to left that had all the earmarks of a single, but Van came in and made a great shoe string catch. Keeler, by the way, is a local product, and he gave a good account of himself. He had no chances in the field, but shone at the bat with two safeties out of five times up.

A good sized crowd witnessed the game. Following is the box score:

Accurate Dependable Durable

Nothing is so essential as accuracy in a corn planter. If you were to plant by hand, the correct number of kernels could be dropped in each hill.

This is desirable, but too slow and expensive. The John Deere No. 9 Planter is accurate, and dependable. Seed plates and valves are positively controlled in their action. There is no spring or trigger in the No. 9 shank.

Valves cannot get out of time, all parts on the rock shaft are riveted in place. Operation of seed plates is sure. There are no ratchets. Instead, the No. 9 has a clutch.

Handy and Durable

Change from hill to drill-dropping is instantly made without getting off the seat. Neither is it necessary to change plates.

There is no equal to the automatic reel for lightness, ease of operation and absence of loose parts. Another time-saver is the tip-over hopper which permits of change of plates without taking out corn.

Frames, front and back, are of full stock. Drill and rock shafts are cold-rolled steel. All parts on rocker shaft are malleable, firmly riveted in place.

Malleable iron is used in check heads and all other places where lightness and strength are necessary. Disc bearings are large. Hard-oil screw caps and felt washers keep grease in and dirt out.

Seed Plates for All Needs

The shoe openers, set so as to penetrate hard and trashy ground, cut their way through, making furrows without skips and insuring good covering of seed.

Five sets of seed plates, meeting all requirements, are regularly furnished.

Let us give you names of those who are already using this planter.

TO PROSECUTE MEN WHO CUT PAY

Trust Law Suggested for Those Who Reduce Wages.

REPUBLICANS TO SAVE FIRE.

Big Battle to Be Deferred Until Underwood Revenue Measure Has Reached the Floor of Chamber. Some Changes in Schedules.

Washington, May 13.—Senator Williams, a member of the senate finance committee, declared that manufacturers who reduce wages or threaten to reduce them because of tariff reductions should be prosecuted by the department of justice under the Sherman anti-trust act. The senator said the Sherman law had been used against laboring men who combined to increase wages and it was just that it should be directed against men who conspire to reduce wages.

Senator Penrose's plan to conduct an extensive filibuster in support of his proposal to hold open tariff hearings before the finance committee will not receive the unanimous backing of the Republicans when it comes up to day.

Would Conserve Oratory.

Many prominent Republican senators do not believe it wise to fire their tariff guns in the preliminary fight over the question of hearings. They argue that Republican oratory should be reserved until the bill is before the senate and then their efforts should be directed toward showing the country what the party thinks of it. Several Republicans indicated that they would vote against the Penrose amendment to make the committee hold public meetings. Persistent reports about the senate say, however, that several Democrats will be found voting with the majority of the Republicans for the Penrose amendment and the vote in consequence is likely to be close.

Skeptical About Report.

Democrats on the finance committee were skeptical about a report that an agreement had been signed by seven western senators who are opposed to free wool to vote against that provision of the bill in conference.

Democrats who keep in close touch with every phase of the situation did not believe that any such agreement has been made or is likely to be made. They declared flatly that they expected the Democrats of the committee to present the bill to the senate with both the wool and sugar schedules as they were left in the house bill.

Some changes in important schedules will be made by the committee. The metal schedule, notably, will be altered and the committee to which it was assigned several weeks ago met last night with Chairman Simmons.

PAPER AND PULP DUTY TO GO

Customs Court Decides in Favor of Producers in Russia and Germany.

Washington, May 13.—The customs court decided that European nations are entitled to the free entry of wood pulp and paper under "the most favored nations" clause of their commercial treaties with the United States because the free entry privilege is granted to Canada under the only operative clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The court also held that the treasury department had placed a correct interpretation on the Canadian reciprocity act by immediately admitting wood pulp and paper free without reciprocal action by Canada. Dissenting opinions were delivered.

Norway, Russia, Austria-Hungary and Germany claimed the right of free entry of wood pulp and paper from their respective countries. Former President Taft declined to grant the request and referred the question to the court.

It cannot be stated whether the treasury department or the department of justice will appeal the case to the supreme court. It has been the attitude of the government to oppose all appeals from the customs court because the act creating the court says the decision of the customs court shall be final. The fact that the question involves the interpretation of treaties may cause the government to appeal.
